I am a versatile and innovative professional from New Zealand with a unique blend of warehousing, IT, management, sales, and creative expertise. With over nine years of experience leading teams and driving results in high-end retail, and over two years of self-employment in software and web development, music production and performance, I excel at problem-solving, communication, and adaptability. I'm a creative thinker with a passion for implementing and maintaining systems, customer service, technology, music, and collaboration, always seeking new challenges and opportunities to grow.

Experience

General / Sales Manager

October 2012 – April 2022

P C Squared trading as Lifestyle

In my hybrid management role, I gained a diverse range of skills, including sales management, stock control, and website management. As we sold and installed high end appliances and luxury goods, being familiar with technical specs and helping customers find the right product for their needs was important for my role, and something I excelled at.

Developer / Music Producer

May 2022 – August 2024

Self Employed

For two years I was been self employed, first studying and then working in software and web development. I also worked as a professional music producer in a few projects in which I have had a dozen or so label signed releases over the last few years, and performed music at various shows and festivals.

Warehouse / Technical Supervisor

September 2024 – October 2025

Farmer's Pick

Starting as a pick-packer after moving to Melbourne from Christchurch, I was promoted to a technical supervisory role. In this role I made improvements to various IT systems, prepared large scale sales order data to be processed by the factory, and also worked with various stock tracking and management responsibilities.
